

Award

October 2009

Honored by distribution association

The Italian distribution association for electronic components Assodel honored EPCOS with the Best Supplier Award 2009. The decisive factor for the award was EPCOS' exceptional performance, which sets the company apart from the competition in Italy. EPCOS first received the award in 2005.

Alongside the passive components category, the award is also presented for electromechanical components, semiconductors, high-frequency and wireless components, power electronics and measurement technology, optical components and displays, and for connectors. The awards are allocated on the basis of a questionnaire sent to over 2,000 representatives of Italian distributors and companies. Their evaluation covers different criteria, such as product quality, logistics and technical support.